Cultivate Balance at the NOFA NJ Winter Conference
David Hambleton of Sisters Hill Farm

Do you often find farming overwhelming? Is your life a little lopsided? David Hambleton, a veteran CSA grower, do–it–yourself home builder, athlete, and loving husband and father, will discuss how he has worked to create the life he always dreamed of. He’ll share what he has done to grow a farm business that promotes a life of balance, one not only defined by fulfilling profitable work; but also by having the time and energy to devote to the relationships and activities that bring him the most joy. He’ll share what he has learned through research and practice so that you too can find balance on your farm and in your life!

David Hambleton is a farmer and farm consultant from NY’s Mid Hudson Valley who is passionate about sharing what he has learned in the past two decades growing for a 300 family CSA, designing and building his own home, and cultivating a loving and passionate family. His beginner’s mind and DIY design/build ethic have helped him to create a number of unique scale appropriate systems and tools leading to a beautiful and productive farm that keeps customers coming back year after year. He’s a big proponent of strategic farm planning in order to attain not just a profitable farm, but a balanced life!
